I'd also like to see the youth educated about the affects of media on their well-being. Have a screening of "Miss Representation" so that the youth can clearly see how they are being affected by the media which is doing a good job producing girls who care about their body image and boys who are powerful and often violent. 7	Utilize the extraordinary talents of Exit 43 to spread the Unitarian message through music	Feb 14, 2012 6:42 PM
8	When we do an event, for example Chowda Fest, it needs to be more clearly expressed that this is a UU Westport event. I recently told a friend who was a religion major in college that I was singing choir in a UU church. He had no idea what I was talking about. Are UU's covered in religious education in academia? If not, this is a larger issue, but could certainly help our congregation as well as others.	Feb 14, 2012 4:55 PM
9	Maybe retool the website so that it takes advantage of social media possibilities? My guess is that if the site had blogging capability, we've got a lot of great voices in the congregation who could help us tell the "story" of the church -- what we've done, what we're doing, what we stand for, the rich/compelling history of UU and the church, etc. Also, start a Facebook page and use it to communicate both internally and externally. The next generation of UU members is tech-savvy. So a more effective web presence could help spread the word and bring people into the fold. (P.S. I found the church last year by Googling it.) 16	I am admittedly uncomfortable with active efforts to "recruit" new members; it seems out of character for Unitarians. But it is wonderful and wise to be an active member of the community and be visible, open and welcoming to all. Our New Canaan Advertiser has a Religion Page and an entry for Unitarian Services with no mention of our congregation. We should add an entry there for sure and in all surrounding area papers.	Feb 8, 2012 9:16 PM
17	I think a lot of people have no idea what Unitarians believe in or that they exist. Efforts focused at education about what Unitarians are might be helpful.	Feb 7, 2012 8:18 PM

19	Although he should be well rounded, it is critical that we choose our next Sr. Minister for (number one) his ability to preach as well as Frank. If our congregants and staff are vibrant, active, welcoming, spiritual seekers that will help to make newcomers feel at home.	Feb 6, 2012 1:02 AM

Get a list of all adult artists, all adult musicians, writers...create events with these groups meeting monthly-and have artists try to generate ideas to grow our church. Example: connect paper that wraps around the interior of the church. Have each member draw something with a theme...Have all ages have fun painting and display it for a month. Have semi-famous child writers doctors talk about "growing children" issues.	Jan 23, 2012 2:49 PM

3	Most of these do not make me want to participate (they seem like "nice to have" rather than "must haves"). I have heard that the sanctuary is packed at 11am but since we attend at 9am, it seems as if most space needs are accommodated. I know some office spaces are tight and we don't have dedicated RE rooms. But I'm not sure whether an addition makes financial sense - especially given our loan from the endowment fund. My motivation will really depend on the specific plan, it's rationale and it's cost.	Feb 23, 2012 2:12 PM

6	Air condition the sanctuary so you can use it during the summer for musical events. You should never have wasted our money on Sheila Lane and I voted against it when it was an issue.	Feb 14, 2012 6:44 PM
7	I am not familiar with all the Shelia Lane specifics. Sorry. But I do think the main building could use a facelift (specifically the tile/walls/carpets). I often wonder if the windows in the sanctuary could be a drain on energy costs. Perhaps thermal curtains that pulley up/down the windows could help with energy savings. These kinds of thermal curtains wouldn't block the windows when they are fully up. Or hiring an outside consultant to help us reduce our energy costs in the future.	Feb 14, 2012 5:03 PM

13	I will NOT donate money to pay back loan.	Feb 9, 2012 11:08 AM
14	To be honest, we are not in a position to contribute to a Capital Campaign at this time or in the near future. Since the 2008 economic collapse, we have experienced 3 successive job losses and are luckily at present managing to keep our bills (just barely) paid. We have no extra funds or safety net. In the future we hope our situation is better and we can help. We would then favor supporting 1) renovations that would upgrade main buildings and make existing facilities more energy efficient and 2) an elevator.	Feb 8, 2012 9:24 PM questions seem to resolve around infrastructure, perhaps frustrations with existing space have not been well communicated? A capital campaign focused on endowing positions for RE programs or something like that would be more appealing.

16	I argued that it was a mistake to buy the Sheila Lane properties and do not feel like making good on that since i tried to stop it from happening. People that are no longer here, pushed for it to happen and now we are in a financial hole. Those people should pay back the loan	Feb 7, 2012 1:38 PM

18	That's it? No place to record dreams for the future? No place to comment on the kitchen? No place to reflect on our staffing? Our RE programs? Too much about money and space, though both are important. Disliked the section on what I would support with my money. My pledge goes for the whole church, with ALL those aspects supported. We don't pick and choose our favorite areas and donate only to those. And I don't like that a name was required. I learned that any kind of entry in that space would allow the survey to go through, but if I didn't know that, I wouldn't have put my name on it.	Feb 2, 2012 11:07 PM
19	Feeling 100% welcomed within my own chosen religious community. Otherwise, everything above, with a special shout out for an elevator, which would honor the history of this congregation in a unique way. I cannot stress how uncomfortable I am in contemplation of pledging to the capital campaign of a "church." It's enough to make me wish that entering my name hadn't been required for me to answer the questionnaire. Or, in the alternative, consider that I vacillated between answering the questionnaire or not, and decided that my participation has been too great in the past 11 years to sit it out and stay silent for the sake of not feeling the discomfort I feel as I click "done" below. 22	I think we've already put extra good money after bad by wanting sheila 3 too much and letting the seller raise the price on us.	Jan 28, 2012 9:47 AM
23	Seriously? Sheila Lane #5? Why? To see if we can botch it any worse than the purchase of the first Sheila Lane property? A suggestion like this makes me want to withdraw my pledge entirely. I will not even consider giving to a Capital Campaign until we settle our current debts. By the way, how are we going to pay for Sheila Lane #3?	Jan 27, 2012 9:53 AM redesigning the parking lot but Sheila Lane could be easily linked to our facility for youth and RE program space... the grounds would also allow some play/sports area for the youth. the kindergarden we hosted for many years was a great symbiosis and exposure to the non-member community... such symbiosis would be desirable for additional income as well...

31	What's wonderful about the building is the feeling of connection to the outside. That aside, it seems to me to be very poorly suited to church functions, looks pretty run down, and has to be terrible from an energy efficiency standpoint. It is my sense that - as a congregation - we tend to make a fetish of the building, and yet it isn't primarily the building that keeps us attending. The downstairs is particularly awkward for running children's activities; just the fact that you have to walk through classrooms to get to other classrooms...	Jan 24, 2012 9:35 AM

34	I am not in a position to give any money to a capital campaign.	Jan 23, 2012 5:23 PM
35	This is a difficult question as currently we don't meet our Annual Pledge Drive and until we do and give our staff raises it is hard to address a capital campaign, especially following the recent issues with Sheila Lane. We can't create a Capital Campaign to pay back the loan for Sheila Lane -- that is not the purpose of a capital campaign. We first need to find out why people don't contribute a minimum recommended amount to the Appeal and then address the fall-out from the funds that were contributed to the endowment that don't exist anymore because of Sheila Lane. I don't think any of these constitute a capital campaign as I understand one.	Jan 23, 2012 5:16 PM
36	I would have to see a case statement for any capital fund campaign not a check off box! The way to ascertain what members would give to would be to get a consultant and do a feasibility study. i will say that we would not give to reduce indebtedness.	Jan 23, 2012 5:05 PM

47	There is nothing that would motivate me to give more money. As a congregation we need to accept that these are tough, economic times and it would be best to work with what we have (a huge debt resulting from the mistake called "Sheila Lane") in order to continue the programs we've come to love and cherish. Once our economic outlook becomes more favorable then we should work on fulfilling the "Wish List".	Jan 23, 2012 10:17 AM
