About:

The goal of the Poor People's Campaign is to build powerful state-based coalitions that can generate a moral movement across the country, shift the distorted national narrative of who and what matters. Ultimately transform the political, economic, and moral structures of our society. The campaign has an intersectional lens, addressing the plight of 150 million in this country who struggle economically while confronting white supremacy, environmental destruction, voter suppression, mass incarceration and deportation, and militarism.
