Revealing the Goddess Within

led by Sudha Sankar

Hindus believe that there is a supreme power within each of us. Hinduism, is populated with myriad gods and goddesses allowing individuals an infinite number of ways to worship. This workshop invites each of us to walk down our own path to discover our inner goddess, explore the phase we are in and the strength and energy available to us within the phase of our lives.

Sudha Sankar and her husband Ravi have been members of The Unitarian Church in Westport, CT since 1995. Born and raised Hindu in India they were seeking a spiritual community and felt right at home from when they walked in the door. The Sankars have for many years led Deepavali services for our K-4 kids, Neighboring Faith programs for the 7th graders and offered lay led summer services on Hinduism to the congregation at large.

At church, Sudha has been and continues to be involved in various aspects of congregational life. She has served as chair of the Worship Associates, and as chair of Religious Education. She is particularly glad to co-lead TUCWomen.

Sudha has occupied local, national and international level leadership positions at non-profit organizations focused on women's issues or youth development. Till recently she was Program director at a cultural and education based international non-profit organization.
